

My Coloring Book About

THE OLD ONES

Text by Jodi Freeman
and Brian Freeman
Illustrations by Terry Flanagan

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2022 with funding from
Kahle/Austin Foundation

My Coloring Book About

THE OLD ONES

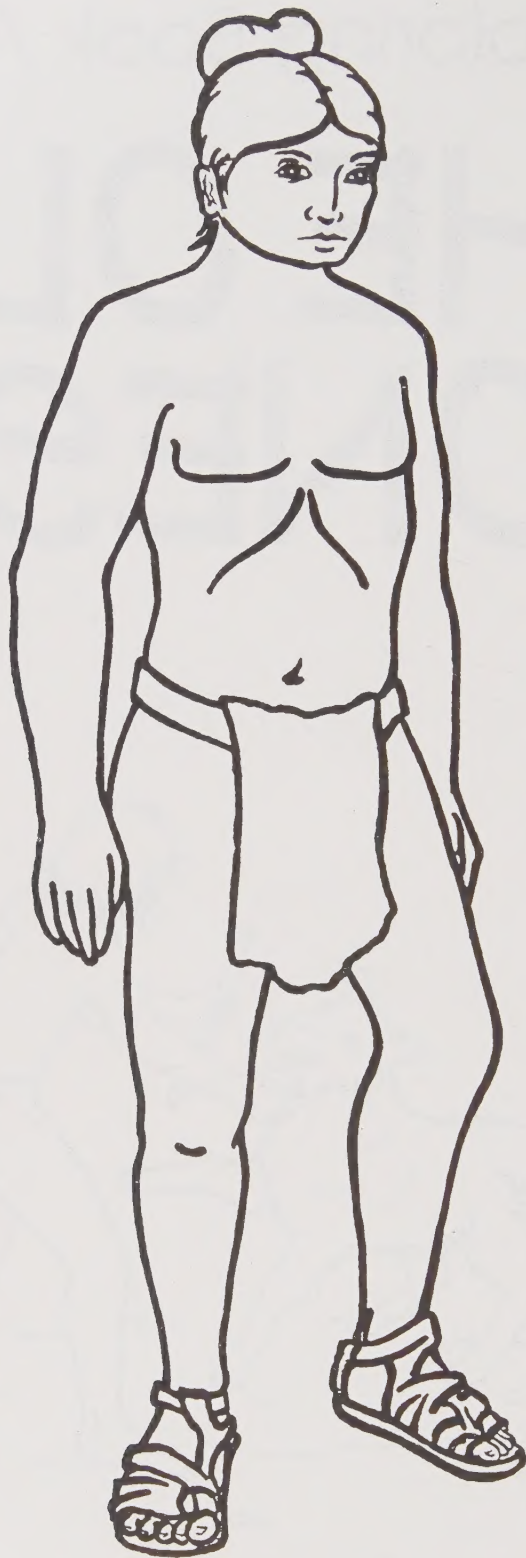

Text and Photographs by Brian Freeman & Jodi Freeman
Illustrations by Terry Flanagan

Copyright 1997, All rights reserved

Published by THE THINK SHOP INC. & First Light PUBLISHING,
1813 E. Mulberry Street, Fort Collins, Colorado 80524

Printed in the United States

ISBN 1-889459-05-4

The Old Ones made all their clothes.

They made their clothes from strings of the yucca plant.

The Old Ones ate fruit from the prickly pear and yucca.

They also ate sunflower seeds.

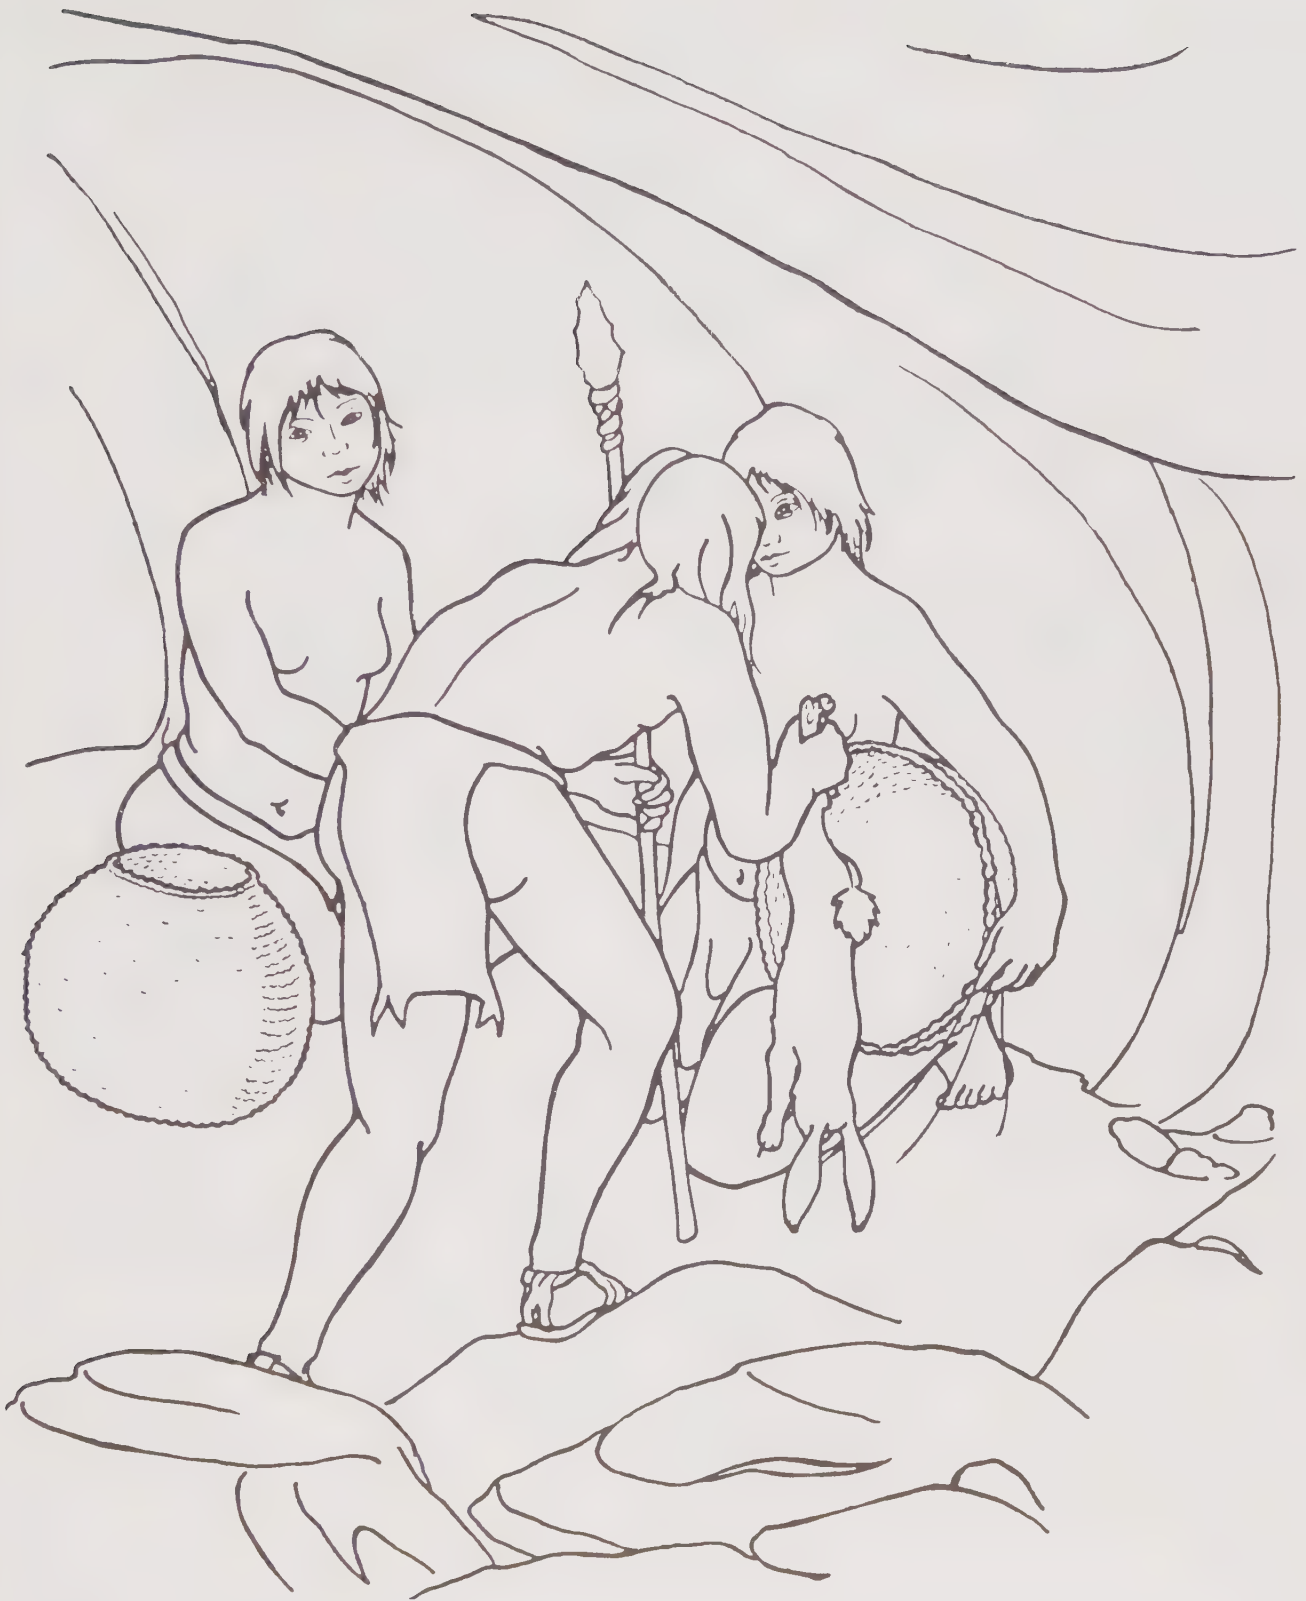

At first, the Old Ones hunted with a spear.

They hunted for mountain sheep and deer.

They saw lizards, toads, mice, and butterflies.

At first, the Old Ones lived in caves.

They made a lot of baskets to keep their food in.

They used hot stones to cook their food.

The Old Ones liked jewelry.

They learned to plant seeds.

The Old Ones made corn meal by rubbing corn with a mano and matate.

They built pithouses in the ground.

The Old Ones carried their babies on a cradleboard.

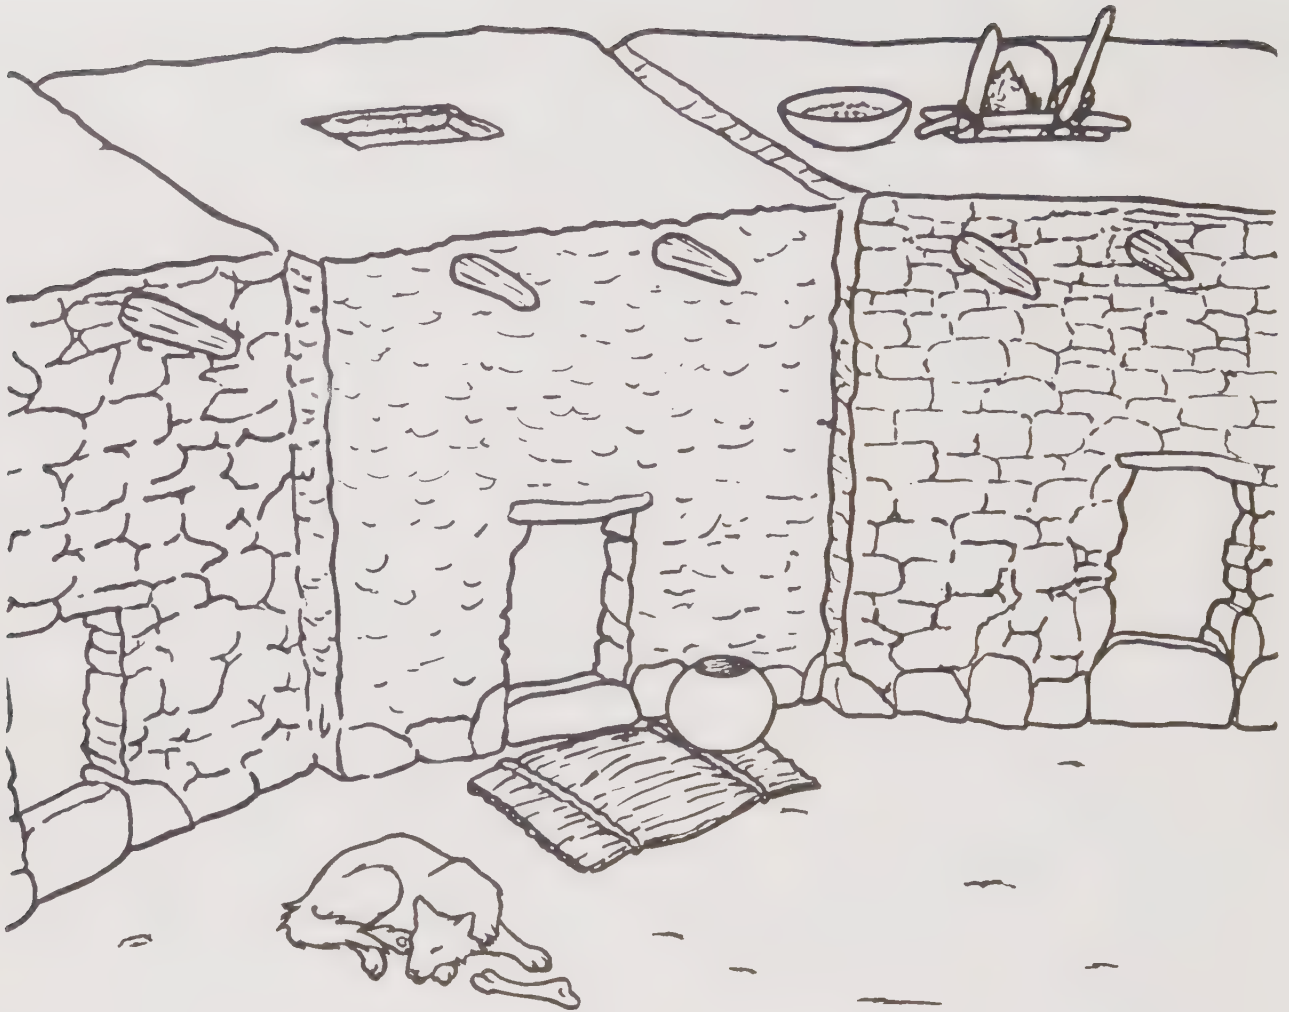

They learned to make bows and arrows.

The Old Ones learned to make pottery.

Pretend you are an Indian. Draw a picture of what you would have liked to do best.

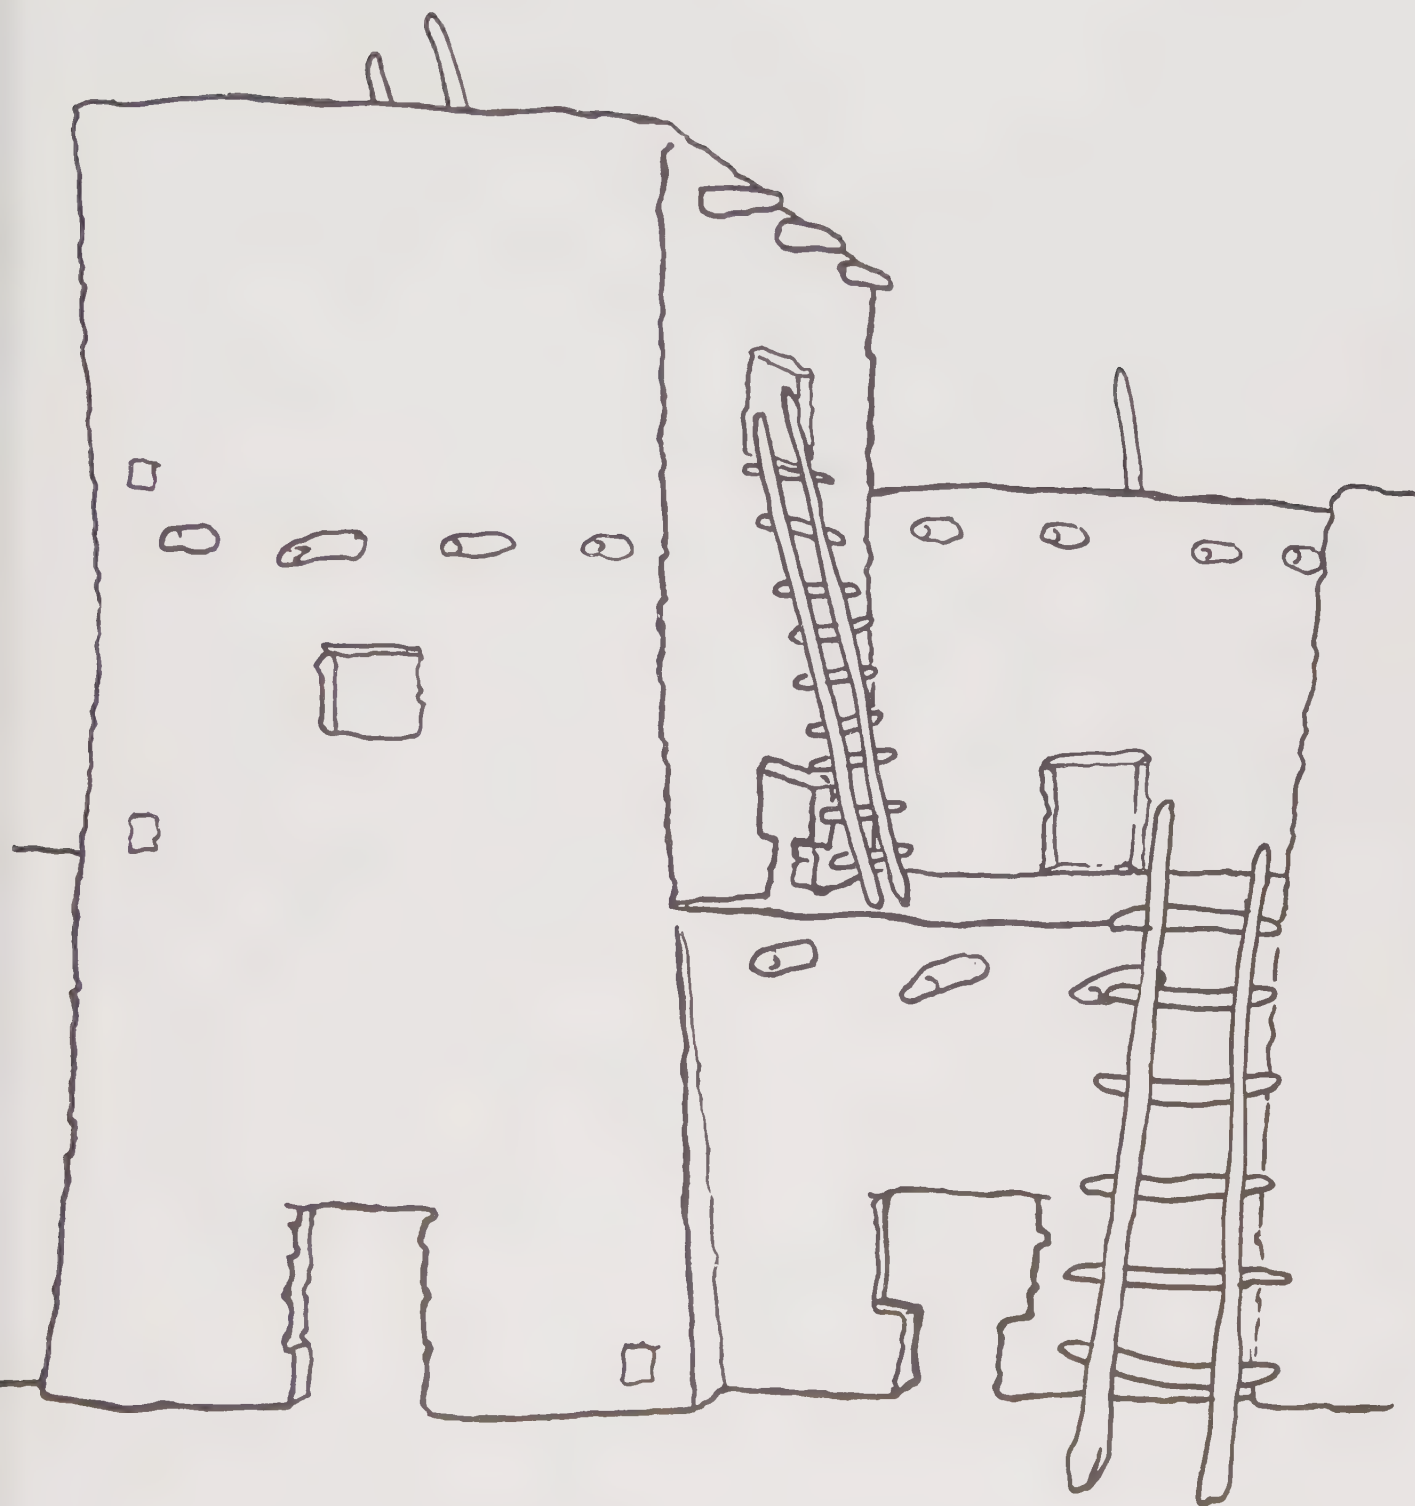

Later, the Old Ones made square houses, all in a row, called pueblos.

The men liked to sit in the kiva.

The woman owned the house. If she got mad, her husband had to leave.

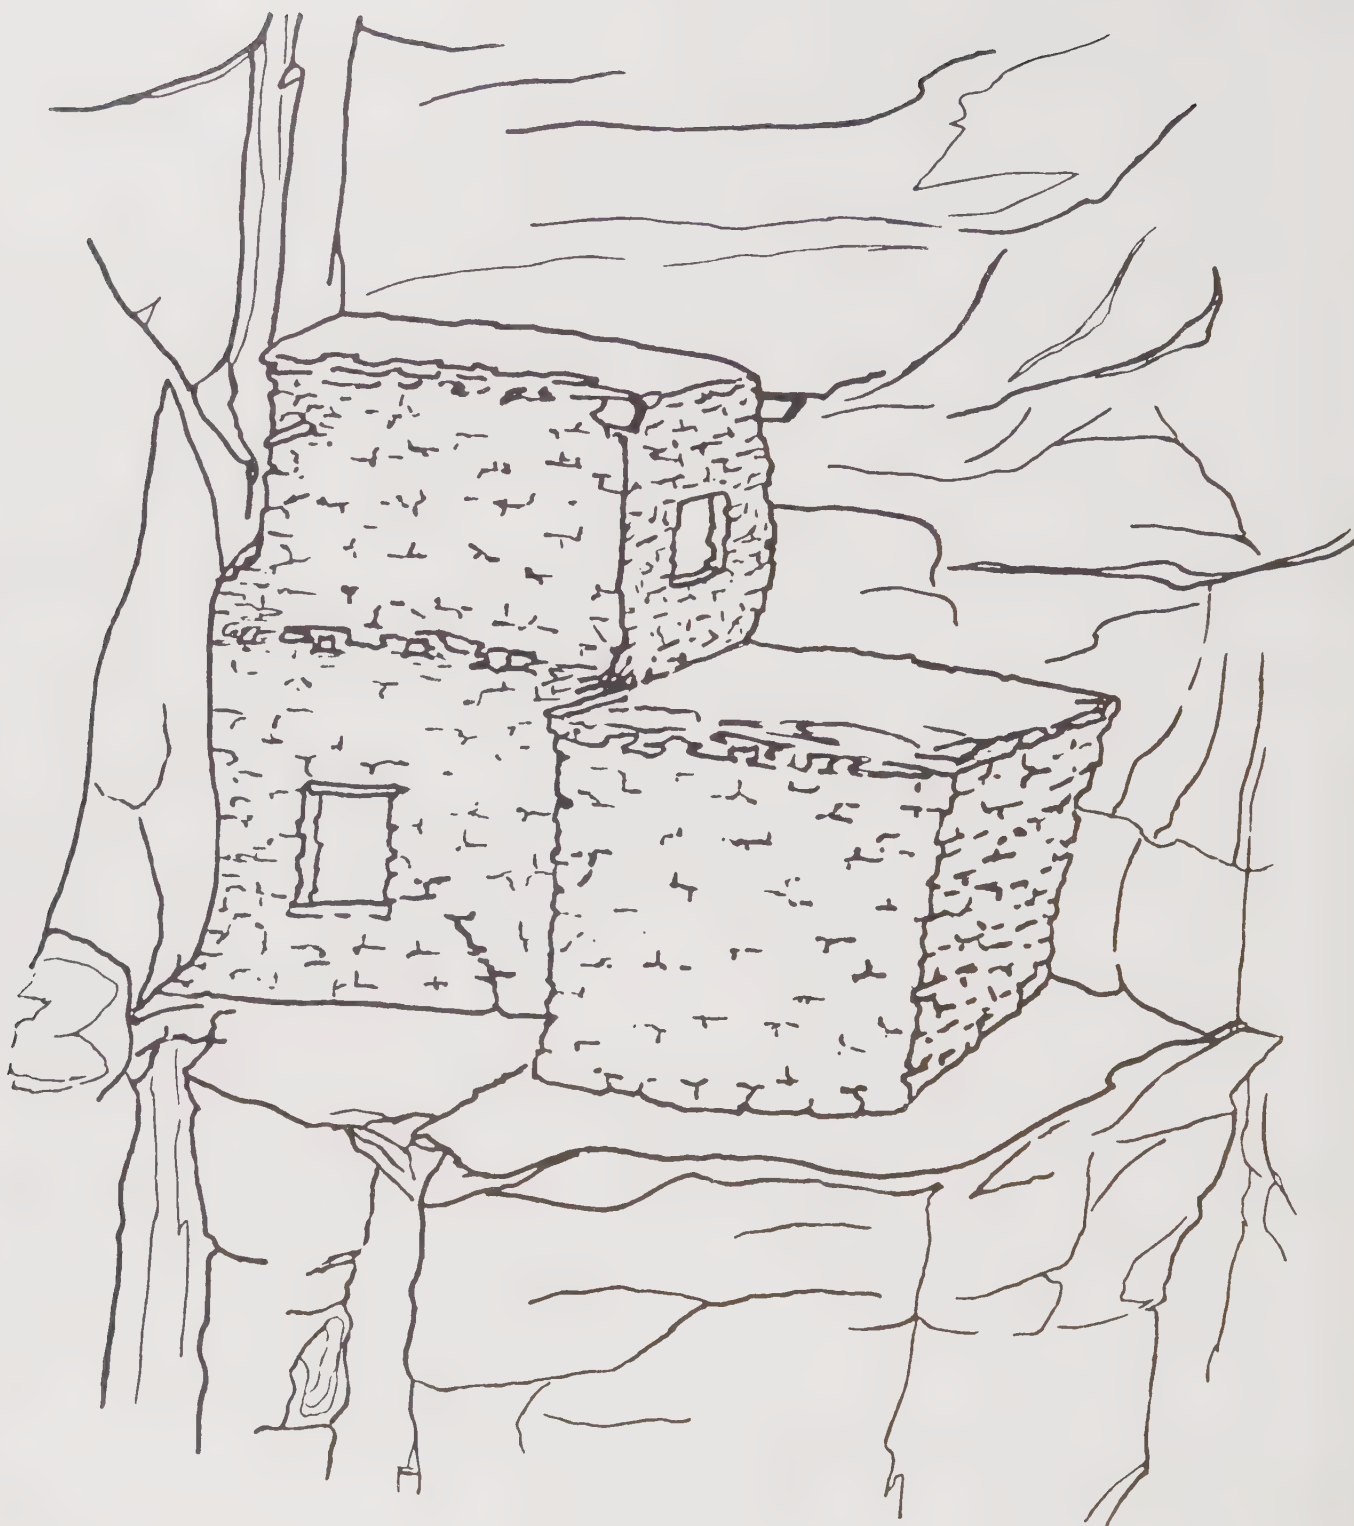

After a while, the Old Ones made big apartment type houses.

Some houses were built in cliffs.

The Old Ones made stairs in the cliffs.

The Old Ones built a lot of small houses.

Pretend you are an Indian. Draw the house
you would build.

The Old Ones threw their trash in a pile.
People today study the trash to learn about the Old Ones.

They didn't have horses. They walked everywhere they went.

It didn't rain for over 12 years. A lot of plants died.

The Old Ones went away.

The Old Ones made new houses. The Pueblo Indians still live in these houses today.

ISBN 1-889-45905-4

9 781889 459059

THE THINK SHOP INC. & First Light PUBLISHING